Celebration Marks Opening of Educational Empowerment Center

Close to 200 guests gathered on the new 4th floor of Miami Lighthouse on the evening of October 7th, to toast the ribbon cutting marking the official opening of the Sash A. Spencer Educational Empowerment Center. Miami Mayor Tomas Regalado, State Senator Gwen Margolis and Miami Commissioner Sally Heyman did the honors as delighted donors and supporters raised their glasses and clapped their approval.

The event, sponsored by Walgreen Co., Northern Trust and Nostro Jones, P.A. was a gala evening as guests toured the various rooms that are now used daily by Miami Lighthouse clients. The three new rooms are the Jan & Daniel Lewis Braille Homeroom, the Carmella Witt Technology Laboratory funded by the Stamps Family Charitable Foundation, and the 3,000 sq. ft. Marta Weeks Wulf Transition Suite. The firm of OHL Arellano provided pro bono general contracting services for the new addition which is specifically designed to help teenagers and adults achieve gainful employment.

Meet Krizia Perez, Social Worker for the Children's Program

You'll catch Krizia on the 3rd floor of the Miami Lighthouse on Mondays and Wednesdays, as she presides over the first expanding Blind Babies "Play Day" program. The two-hour long morning sessions involve mothers and their babies in a series of activities designed to help the youngsters learn to interact with others and help the parents to work with their visually impaired offspring. Krizia describes the program as offering sensory play, gross motor activity and literacy in the form of reading by both the parents and staff, and notes that many of the children make remarkable progress.

"I love my job," says Krizia, a Miami native, who has been with Miami Lighthouse for four years and holds a Masters Degree in Social Work from Barry University. "When I am not here at Miami Lighthouse, I am most often visiting in the homes of families whose children are visually impaired." On Monday and Wednesday mornings these families have the opportunity to participate in programs specifically designed for blind babies. "When a mother exclaims, 'Oh, I didn't know my blind child could play with others,' we know our programs are making a difference!"
